Rules Of Procedure

Roll Call:

Roll Call is when the Chair calls each country to determine if they are present in the room. This is done in alphabetical order. When you hear your country called, you should raise your placard and answer “Present” or “Present and voting”.

● “Present’' - You can abstain when voting on a draft resolution.

● “Present and Voting” You must vote either “Yes” or “No” for every draft resolution that is voted on.

Motion to Start Debate:

After Roll Call the chairs will look for a specific motion, which is; Motion to Start Debate.

Motion To Open General Speakers List (GSL):

After Starting debate the chairs will also look for a specific motion and it’s to open general speakers.

General Speaker’s List is the Moment the delegates will state their speech

How does the General Speaker’s list work?

1. Chair will ask if any delegates are interested in being added to the GSL.

2. Delegates show their interest by raising their placards.

3. Chair will recognize delegates by calling their country name, after which the delegate is placed on the GSL.

Point of Information:

- Chair's Inquiry: After the Delegate finishes speaking, the Chair asks, "Is the Delegate open to any Points of Information?"

- Delegate's Response: The Delegate can specify how many POIs they are open to (e.g., "The Delegate is open to any and all POIs" or "The Delegate is open to two POIs"), or they can yield their remaining time to the Chair, another delegate, or the floor.

- Floor Invitation: If the Delegate accepts POIs, the Chair addresses the committee: "Any delegates wishing to ask a Point of Information, please raise your placards now."

- Selecting Delegates: Delegates raise their placards, and the Chair selects one delegate at a time up to the limit set by the speaker or floor rules.

- Question & Answer: The selected delegate stands and asks a single, direct question related to the speech. The speaker then responds.

Yielding The Floor:

During the GSL, time can only be yielded to the Chair. After you complete your speech and any POIs, the Chair will ask if you yield the floor back to the Chair. You should reply: "The delegate of [Country] yields the floor back to the Chair."

Moderated Caucus:

A moderated caucus is for delegates to discuss subtopics related to the main topic. The committee topic is usually very broad, so moderated caucuses are used to narrow the discussion and go into more detail on certain aspects.

The length and topic of a moderated caucus are chosen by the delegate who offers the motion. For example: “Venezuela motions for a 10-minute moderated caucus, 45 seconds speakers time on the topic of ‘How we can protect people from rising sea levels’”.

Unmoderated Caucus:

An unmoderated caucus, informally called unmod or lobbying time, is when delegates get out of their seats, meet, form blocs, discuss ideas, negotiate, start writing their working papers/draft resolutions and finding support for their draft resolutions. When the unmoderated caucus finishes, delegates return to their seats.

Seconds and Objections

Second - When a delegate formally shows support for the motion that was raised. Almost every motion needs at least one second to be considered.

Objection - When a delegate does not support a motion.

Delegates can’t Second or Object a motion they raised themselves.

If there are no seconds, the motion automatically fails.

If a motion has a second, the Chair will ask for objections.

If no objections are raised, the motion will pass without further voting.

When a motion gets seconds and objections, the motion gets put on a list with other motions that also receive seconds and objections.

When the chair decides they have received enough motions, the committee proceeds to vote on the motions.

Voting on all motions is mandatory for all delegates.

Draft Resolutions:

Draft resolutions are formal documents which contain your policy ideas, and those of other delegates, written according to United Nations formatting rules.

To get a draft resolution approved by the Chairs, the content needs to be sound, the formatting needs to be correct, and you need a minimum number of supporters (1/3 of the delegates in the committee as Signatories).

The draft resolutions which are approved by the chair are the documents the committee will vote on in the voting procedure.)

Sponsors – Delegates who wrote the resolution or played a key role in the resolution

Signatories – Delegates who support the draft resolution or at least want to see the ideas discussed. (No limit on the number of Delegates listed as Signatories).

NOTE: Every committee will present only 5 Resolutions randomly due to chairs discussion, and there will be an option for *merging resolutions.

Each Delegate Have to come to the Conference with a Clause.

And it should be sent via email to Each committee's Email (Emails will be provided Two weeks before the Conference).

Amendments:

After a draft resolution has been introduced, delegates are able to propose changes to the draft resolution, called amendments.

Amendments include adding a new clause, striking out a clause or changing the text of an existing clause.

Amendments are voted upon during voting procedure, before the draft resolutions are voted on as a whole. Each amendment is introduced and voted on separately.

Unfriendly amendments - Amendments that are not supported by at least one sponsor of the draft resolution.

amendments - supported by all the sponsors and automatically added to the draft resolution.

(Once each draft resolution has been presented and voted on, it will be added to the final document and submitted as an official resolution addressing the current conflict.)

Points:

A point is something you raise when it concerns something you'd like to address for yourself. There are four points.

Point of inquiry: When a delegate is unsure of the rules and would like an explanation from the chair.

Point of personal privilege: When the delegate's experience is impacted. Going to the bathroom or turning on the air conditioner are points of personal privilege. Other PoPP are that a delegate can't hear the speaker or read the projected draft resolution.

Point of information: another delegate a question about their speech after their speech concludes. This is done during GSL. POI's can only be asked after a GSL speech from the delegate who finished speaking. POIs cannot be asked of a delegate who has received yielded time.

Point of order: When a delegate believes the Chair has made an error made in the formal procedure.

Motions:

Motions are collected by the chair and put to vote. The chair has discretion as to when to allow motions to be offered and which to consider out of order at a given time.

Motion to open debate - To begin discussion at the beginning of the first session.

Motion to suspend debate - To break for lunch, coffee break.

Motion to Close the debate - To close the committee as a whole.

Motion for moderated caucus – "motion for a moderated caucus of 8 minutes, individual speaking time 45 seconds, to discuss issue."

Motion for unmoderated caucus - "motion for an unmoderated caucus of 12 minutes." You do not need to give a reason for an unmoderated caucus.

Motion to introduce draft resolution - "motion to introduce Draft Resolution."

Right of Reply: If a delegate feels offended by the content of the other delegates speech during the GSL they can ask for a Right of Reply (RoR). If the chair accepts the reason, the delegate gets to give a 30-second speech to respond to the offense.

HSC Committee ROP

Permanent Five (P5) Members:

China /France /Russian Federation /United Kingdom /United States

1. Veto Power Mechanism: Each of these five permanent members possesses absolute veto authority. Consequently, a single P5 nation can unilaterally defeat any draft resolution, regardless of how many non-permanent members vote in favor.
2. P5 Consultative Caucus: A P5 Caucus enables these major powers to convene in an unmoderated, closed-door session separately from the ten elected non-permanent members. The caucus may also invite up to three non-permanent members to participate in negotiations.

There is no Fact check.

Motion to summon an Al-Qaeda representative. (Only for the HSC Committee.)

This motion means that the committee will bring an Al-Qaeda representative before the committee. The representative will:

1. Deliver a short statement/speech addressing the committee.

2. After the speech, delegates will be allowed to raise POIs and directly question the representative.

3. The representative can respond to the questions, creating an opportunity for delegates to challenge, clarify, or obtain information about Al-Qaeda's position and actions.
